

Cuyahoga Valley Photographic Society Workshop

Landscape Photography Intensive with Doug Johnson April 25 - 27, 2014

Join CVPS for an intensive workshop focused on building your skills in landscape photography. Over the course of three information-packed days, professional photographer Doug Johnson will expand your understanding of how to approach landscapes to create images that express depth and visual interest. The workshop will combine lectures, demonstrations, field shooting to practice techniques, and critiques. Topics include:

- Honoring the landscape photo pioneers
- Landscape and light
- Visualization and resources for preparation
- Lens perspectives and depth of field
- Get it all sharp using hyper focal focusing
- Layering positive and negative space (creating visual depth)
- Filters that enhance landscape photography
- Shooting and processing realistic High Dynamic Range scenes
- Overcoming high contrast & exposure limitations
- Creating dynamic panoramic images

Workshop Details and Registration

The Workshop meets Friday morning through Sunday at 4pm. Participants must be comfortable using their camera equipment and tripod, and be able to download their images for critique. Limited to 20 participants. Fee does not include lodging, meals, or transportation.

Workshop Fee:

$395 CVPS member/ $460 non-member; $225 deposit; balance due Jan 4. Early-bird Discount (to first 10 participants registered by February 15, 2014): $345 CVPS member/ $410 non-member.

Doug Johnson is a Colorado native now living in Missoula, Montana where he is on the faculty of the Rocky Mountain School of Photography. He shoots and leads field workshops in some of the most beautiful landscapes in the country. Doug's photographic work has covered many diverse projects in the documentary, commercial, fine art and educational fields. Assignments have taken him from coyote killing in Wyoming to the last stages of a woman's life to the graffiti-covered alleys and abandoned buildings of Denver. He is the photographer for the recently published The Art of the State - 120 Artworks for 120 Years: Selections from the Montana Museum of Art and Culture. Before a life-changing pursuit of photographic art, Doug was an outdoor educator for more than 20 years, teaching people backcountry skills in mountaineering, avalanche awareness and wilderness first aid. No matter where you are in your photographic journey, Doug's balance of the aesthetic with the technical can help you further express your unique vision. View some of Doug's work at dougjohnsonphotography.com

To register, call the Conservancy for CNVP:
(330) 657-2909 ext. 100

© Doug Johnson

